

I am rather happy with the wisconsin version of the Don't Call law as I would say I used to receive 2 - 3 calls a week from various places soliciting items. I find the more stringent clauses of the wisconsin law make more sense. If I stop doing business with a company I don't wish to recieve phone calls from them. Having a waiting period for my rights to be reinstated with them is not something I wish to see done.

Please leave our law alone. In a day when advertising bombards us in every form of media, if I wish to do business with a company I will call them.
